ABOUT US

The Royal Entomological Society (RES) is a global charity devoted to the understanding and development of insect science. We support international collaboration, research and publication.

We aim to show every person how remarkable and valuable insects are and want to enrich the world with insect science.

IAFF SPECIAL INTEREST GROUP (SIG)

The Insects as Food and Feed Special Interest Group (SIG) brings together one of the most dynamic emerging industries within entomology. As part of the Society's Grand Challenges in Entomology, the IAFF SIG unites a wide range of experts who are shaping the future of sustainable protein.

Our members include scientists, insect farmers, food technologists, lawyers and chefs. Together, they explore the enormous potential of insects as a novel, sustainable protein source for human food, animal feed, and a growing range of industrial applications.

At our annual gathering, we highlight the latest research and industry breakthroughs. The event features presentations on cutting-edge science, panel discussions, Informal talks, and networking opportunities across disciplines. It's a space where ideas evolve, collaborations form, and the future of insect-based food and feed takes shape.

Well organised, good agenda & speakers, valuable insights and diverse perspectives.

“

What a breath of fresh air. Compared to previous events I've been to, the breadth of topics covered was superb and the quality of the Keynote speakers excellent. This was everything you hope for at such an event.

Packed with amazing information and rejuvenated my energies to move forward!
